

Genre Analysis Project:

I think more genres about social media should be talked about. Social media is a pretty common source of entertainment, information, and relatable content. Multiple people have also used social media as their main source of income, and they started off creating big businesses from their following. I have also been involved in social media and have gained many important sponsorships and followers that help me move forward in my career path. Big influencers such as Alisha Marie, The Kid Laroi, and Isabella Sunning all started off as ordinary people that now have their future lined up because of the delivery of their videos on social media. Genre is extremely important with this career line up because it is important how the aesthetics look to make it pleasing to the audience. This is also important in education because many many students started implementing social media to pay off loans they have for graduate school.

Alisha Marie was just a normal girl before she started making youtube videos that blew up. She used the 2016 saturation, and typical “school girl” narrative to gain followers. From making those youtube videos ten years ago to now, she has a podcast with her best friend and has celebrity guests such as Hailey Bieber, to further her career. The main aspect that grasped people’s attention was her editing style and using bright colors to capture the audience’s attention. It is important to learn about style and editing for this genre because it could really boost someone’s career, and give them the leisure of doing something they love and making a lot of money doing so.

The Kid Laroi was just an ordinary Australian boy who started posting his music on Tik Tok, and the next thing you know he was collabing with Justin Bieber and performing at Coachella. Call it luck or fate, it only took one video for him to blow up and be able to pursue the career of his dreams. Genre plays an important role in using the audience's feedback in writing these songs to see what the audience likes/ dislikes to alter the style of his writing.

Last but not least, Isabella Sunning just started her journey at Texas A&M pursuing Dental School. At the end of her journey, she would have been half a million dollars in debt, however filming a day in her life as a dental student led her to paying off all her dental school tuition, and she will be graduating with no money to be owed. The way she filmed her videos is what truly captured me to continue following and supporting her journey, and I have been able to learn a lot about this genre through watching other famous influencers and their editing style.

Overall, Viral Videos need to be studied more because many people were able to kickstart their career through the luxury of their home just from making entertaining videos for the audience. Everyone has specific interests and hobbies, and social media has a lot of videos to offer, it is just about the style and hook the audience is looking for to become a successful one.
